Homepage: Tag Archives: list It is common that many companies still use the paper for task management and office lists. It is a nice and handy way to store information on paper. You can keep paper files as a backup in case your computer got broken. You can read your files whenever you want. However, there is a downside that the files are not protected at all. When you get a paper document, it can be easily lost or get damaged. All the information that you have stored on paper is also gone. Paper documents are not secure. All kinds of people can get hold of your papers, from the friend of a friend to hackers. And, even if your files are kept in a locked desk or a drawer, someone can open it and get access to your information. There is no secure way to keep your data secured and protected. When you use paper files, your information is easily exposed. Thus, it is very important to keep your files in a reliable and secure system. Here are some suggestions for how to secure your
