do everything, but now I'm running this little service (hosted at Cloudflare) and using my new data set, I'm adding new emoji ranges. Why do I need a new emoji ranges service? Because Cloudflare has a new standard API, and I don't like to waste bandwidth on resources I don't need. So, I'm providing an API just to load up the UTF-8 files from Unicode and expose a nice neat RESTful interface that returns JSON. The RESTful interface (a) doesn't really do anything useful yet (b) is meant to be used by the Unicode Technical Committee So, for now, just use the Unicode ranges that you see from my GitHub 3da54e8ca3
