Recent initiatives from the World Health Organization have called for increased promotion of nurses' roles in promoting health and preventing disease. An education-first approach to clinical practice and preventive measures among nurses has been proposed to address these issues. The aim of this study was to test the efficacy of this model in a large sample of nurses by evaluating an educational intervention in Saudi Arabia. This multicenter randomized controlled trial evaluated the effectiveness of an education-first approach on knowledge, skills, and practices in clinical practice among nurses working in government primary healthcare centers in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Participants were randomly assigned to an intervention or a control group. The intervention included a total of 5 sessions: an initial course on knowledge 3da54e8ca3
