It was an exhibition tournament that included all 20 NBA Development League teams and their G League affiliates, as well as the host Austin Toros. The top eight teams qualified for the 2010 NBA D-League All-Star Game on Saturday, February 16, in Honolulu, Hawaii. Format The top eight teams in the playoffs competed in the showcase, with the Austin Toros acting as host. The top four seeds will play in the opening round of the playoffs. The two remaining seeds compete in a separate bracket. The semis and the finals featured the top two seeds and the fifth through eighth seeds. The winners played in the All-Star Game. Three studies have investigated the discriminative validity of a configural/componential symptom model of schizophrenia proposed by Kerns (CKS) and colleagues. Study 1 replicated the positive findings obtained by Kerns and colleagues that the CKS model was able to predict group membership. In addition, three of four measures (totals and atypicality scores from the CKS model, as well as a brief psychosis rating and a clinical interview, the Brief Psychiatric Rating Scale) were found to be superior to conventional symptom ratings. Study 2 investigated the utility of the model for predicting immediate treatment response, and for predicting symptoms at discharge, 6 and 12 months after admission. The CKS model was consistently a better predictor of symptoms and response than any conventional measure, and was able to discriminate between patients with schizophrenia who improve and those who do not, at least in the short term. Study 3 investigated whether the CKS model could reflect a patient's neurocognitive impairment on account of psychosis. Impairment in cognitive functioning on the neuropsychological tests employed was found to be predicted by the CKS model, although its predictive utility was limited. Overall, the findings of these three studies add to the evidence that the CKS model is a valid and clinically relevant model of
