Battle Monster Tower 2 Battle Monster Tower 2 The Little Spirit of the East: The Little Spirit of the East: ThreatGEN: Red vs. Blue. The unofficial, open source PC version of the game, which plays and looks the same as the game described above, but using an open source GameMaker Studio game engine (not the premium version). Game Play Turn-based Strategy Style ThreatGEN: Red vs. Blue is a turn-based strategy game played much like popular global domination board games. Rather than a world map, the "game board" consists of a computer network, which players compete for control over. No technical skill is required to play. Instead of simulated computer terminals and computer code, players choose and commit actions using the action menu, similar to a skill tree used in many other computer and console games. NOTE: ThreatGEN: Red vs. Blue does not simulate command line skills and techniques. This is a "point-and-click" style simulation. It is designed to help players learn and exercise cybersecurity concepts and strategies. The simulation is very detailed, but not technical. What's new:

1939 Order of Battle: Blitzkrieg 1939 (abbreviated as O.B.:B.K. 1939) is a series of computer wargames published by New World Computing (NWC) and focused around the battle of France in 1940. This wargame follows on from the NOD ("New Order of Battle") series of battles of the

Second World War, and was the first in what is now a common series of wargames of the early years of a war. O.B. Blitzkrieg 1939 was intended to replicate the aim of the commander rather than the player acting as a general, as it models the decisions and strategies made by senior leaders rather than those of their subordinates. Version 1.0, the September 2003 issue, followed closely to the events of the latter months of the Second World War and was the first version produced for the International Wargames Festival in Nottingham in 2004. Introduction In 2001, NWC was contacted by Paul Bergner for a wargame portraying the battle for France in 1940: this became Order of Battle: France 1940 as a single battle tournament-game. By 2004, the company was contracted to produce a series of volumes depicting major World War II campaigns. The remaining campaigns would be split between other NWC titles as separate books and will be labeled with a "B" title, starting with O.B.:B.K. 1939 (the "B" replacing the "-France" sub-titles that were used for the first game). The initial title, Order of Battle: Blitzkrieg 1939 (abbreviated as O.B.:B.K. 1939) is indeed a play-at-home game, simulating a series of orders of battle for the Western Front from the French campaign of the Battle of France in 1940 and indeed this is where the title was often understood (by fans of the series, as well as players) to be the true title. Version 1.0 was the first release for the series and although it was designed for home use, it also targets professional wargamers and was actually designed for play by the firm's PROFAB team of wargame developers, rather than for hobby use by the general public. Because of this, the rules have differing rules for play versus "typical" players and "in-game" play versus simulation (game play versus simulated). The creators of O.B.:B.K. 1939, Paul Bergner and Hector Torres, therefore produced
