Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a tire monitoring system that transmits information from a vehicle to a monitoring center. More specifically, the present invention relates to a tire monitoring system that transmits an image of a surface of a pneumatic tire to the monitoring center. 2. Description of the Related Art Tyre monitoring systems have been proposed which transmit information from a vehicle to a central monitoring station. The information typically includes the location of the tire, the pressure of the tire, the temperature of the tire, and/or the type of tire. The central monitoring station may send an alert to a user of the vehicle if one or more of the tires is causing a tire condition to occur, such as a pressure reduction. Some monitoring systems perform tire identification and tire wear identification. Tire identification may be performed using tire identification codes that are printed or otherwise provided on the tire or the rim of the tire. The tire identification code is typically read by the vehicle when the vehicle loads the tire onto a rim. Tire wear identification may be performed using embedded electronic monitoring circuits that are provided on the outer surfaces of the tire
