Over the years humans have constructed, abandoned, destroyed and learned to rebuild the world around them - more than a few cities have grown in size, some were even devastated, many have become even larger over time. Slowly, with the discovery of new and never before seen technologies and improvements of old inventions, the world grew to reach new horizons. Over time the complexity of the world around us became so great that many magic men and women stepped in and tried to control it. Creatures made of magic, grew from small clay-like cubes into enormous monsters causing much trouble in the cities. As the chaos grew, wars started, caused by the greed of factions of people. The third kingdom rose, the earth was destroyed in the fighting. The world turned a dark earth. The people of the Third Kingdom cursed the earth, more and more corruption, darkness, and evil grew. They built cities underground, beneath the surface, in their new home. Our main character, a soldier in the third kingdom has killed his parents. He survived, now the people of the third kingdom want revenge. The main character must join with a few friends (and maybe a few more) and search for the forces that have destroyed the earth. We must find out why the world is turning a dark earth and why it was destroyed. We must find out if there is hope left for the world. About The Developer: My name is Jakub Stasko, the leader of The Owl Games and the one who designed Dungeons Are Random. I am now the designer, developer, project lead, and, when it makes sense, the artist of the project. I've always enjoyed making games: I drew my first game when I was 12, programmed my first game when I was 13, and from then on I've been making my own games since then. I have more than 50 games under my belt in various genres. I've learned everything about programming from the young and old, from roguelikes, to engines, to combat systems, and everything in between. I believe, that my skills as a developer are my favorite, because I love to challenge myself and develop new and interesting things, even when I know exactly what the results will be. So far, I can state that I've implemented a skill system, a game over screen, level up system, stat system, and a permanent death mechanic! About The Devlog/Making Of Dungeons Are Random/etc: I'll try to keep you updated of how we're developing this

The player of the game will be... you! Join in on the adventure of a little sleepwalker named Ana Lúcia and help her to cope with the crazy world she lives in. Join in her journey of discovery and wade through her own nightmare. Warning: This is a difficult game! It means that, unfortunately, a lot of games have no place on the gasp WINDOWS area, BUT if you're in for a night of horror games and up to the challenge, this game is for you! Game Story: Asleep is an adventure-stealth game, in pixel art 2D, set in the Brazil Northeast of the 90s. Narrated through Ana Lúcia perspective, a lonely and confused girl, lost and immersed in a chaotic reality of her nightmares. With no much info and a mind that flirts with insanity, the player must join her to unravel what is happening there, collecting clues in her sketchbook and solving puzzles. With only a flashlight to illuminate your path, and wit to survive the enemies lurking in the darkness. Features Lighting system to protect you from enemies (or attract them) Life system based on the protagonist's sanity Stealth mechanics for exploring more dangerous environments Travel between a more obscure and hostile version of the same place Classic puzzles with unique mechanics Documents, items, and mementos collectibles that expands the game plot Dense narrative with several choices along the way and that unfolds in multiple endings About This Game: The player of the game will be... you! Your first flight will land at the Grand County Regional airport. Touch the fuel in your right hand and push the select button. You will start to move while the flap will be activated automatically by the APM unit. You will be able to control the elevator and the rudder by moving the left stick. When the instruments lights in front of you are already red, you will be able to push the throttle forward and disengage. You will lift off the runway. The engine sounds and the airspeed indicator will increase in frequency and amplitude. When the first engine has started, let go of the throttle. You will receive a "cruise warning". The flight will be simulated automatically, however, it is possible to use the rudders to turn, and as you will be well under 1000 feet, you will not have a problem of losing speed. Hold the stick back and the cruise mode will be activated. It will be possible to control the rudder during the cruise mode. You will set the forward cruise speed by the setting the throttle forward and letting go of the stick. Once the cruise is set, you will keep this speed for 1.5 minutes. During this time, you will be able to press the accelerator once and the engines will be reduced. You will keep the speed for 3 minutes. You will be allowed to choose the cruise speed for the 1.5 and 3 minute options. You will be able to press the selector button to select 3 minute, 5 minute or 7 minute cruise speed, and you will be able to choose between 400 and 500 KIAS. Pressing the throttle forward and letting go of the stick will reduce the speed to the set cruise speed. If the option has been selected, you will reach the set speed in 3 minutes, 5 minutes or 7 minutes. You will be able to access the landing gear, raise the gear, release the brakes, push the selector button to select lower gear, lower the gear and the landing gear will be automatically lowered. When the landing gear has been lowered, you will be able to land the aircraft by touching the emergency button. Touch the throttle forward, lower the gear and touch the selector button. You will have to approach in an area where you have enough space to land and the runway will be detected automatically. You will land the aircraft by touching the selector button. For the example, we are in a crosswind and the airport will detect a large area in which you have to land, it will alert you and you will be able to land in this
