File Manager Premium v3.1.1 This is my first post to this wonderful forum and I need some help. On the 15th Oct 2012 I purchased the download version of Adobe Photoshop CS5 Extended and came across a minor problem. The install seems to be going normally until it gets to a certain file-name. I'm not sure what you call this file but it's name is: "Plugins_Premium_Unknown.exe" in the drive I am installing from. I'm not sure if this is a bug in Adobe's Photoshop or what. It seems like if the file gets this long name, then the install is aborted. I have tried uninstalling the program once I had installed it, deleting the file in the above mentioned location and restarting, however, it still will not install. So I've come here, hoping for some help. I'm sorry, I wasn't much help at all. I had the same problem, it didn't matter how I tried to install. I ended up just buying a copy of Photoshop again. I didn't know which program it was, but there are so many different programs with the same name that it didn't help me at all. Thank you anyway for trying to help. I appreciate that it was not a big deal for you.

I'm setting up a VPN server. And I'm wondering how do I secure the server from the inside, using a VPN? For example, how would I prevent someone who have access to the server from accessing other servers, or at least preventing them from accessing my other servers? A: One thing I do is unplug all networking devices from my router and modem when I am not at home. At home I plug them into separate switches that only I have access to. Then I can use VAPT (I am Linux user) to route all outgoing traffic to my VPN. A: There are several things you can do: Use a firewall Set up access lists on your server
