The results include: Sprinting efficiency on the ball has been improved to allow players greater control, and real-life player runs have been mapped to game sprints. Players have more range in certain on-the-ball actions, allowing them to cut off passing lanes, and change direction quicker in tight areas. Players react quicker to developments on the pitch, and players run more efficiently down the channels. Players now take more intelligent touches of the ball when turning, and player weight transfer is more realistic. With faster animations, players are easier to follow, and you'll see more variety in how they pass. Dribbling actions and the ball's flight are more realistic, and flicker effects have been added to the ball. Also, the new “Move Locally, Match Globally” philosophy introduces two new scoring types, and attributes and events now have a great degree of responsiveness. Elsewhere, the introduction of “One Vision” provides context for gameplay, player positioning is now more realistic, and offsides have been optimized and improved to be more accurate and more intuitive. Many authentic elements are supported by brand new authentic motions, player movements, player reactions, player creativity and more. Every single aspect of game control has been improved, including dribbling, passes, shooting, crosses, long-range shooting, defensive positioning and more. FIFA 22 will be available in Q4 of this year. More details about FIFA 22 will be available soon on www.fifa.com. Follow @fifa on Twitter, like us on Facebook and join the conversation on EA Forums.

The Craver Report: What do you look for when you buy a new iPhone? What if it's my wife's iPhone? These are the questions that come up, and if I'm being honest with myself, the answer is very personal. For... The Craver Report: We see so many movies. We see so many TV episodes. We consume so much written culture. It's easy for us to get lost inside of all of the things we are consuming. It's easy for us to become so... As a Christian, I am reminded of the story of the Prodigal Son. The Prodigal Son, a young man who left home to do all that he could to prove that he was his own man, was caught Safety and efficacy of varenicline in combination with cognitive behavioural therapy for smoking cessation among patients with comorbid psychiatric disorders in primary care. The efficacy of varenicline, the only licensed medication for smoking cessation in Australia, has not been evaluated among smokers with psychiatric comorbidity. We evaluated the efficacy of varenicline (N = 173) in combination with cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT; n = 43) compared with placebo (n = 110) and CBT (n = 59) among smokers with psychiatric disorders in primary care. Compared with the control group, both treatment groups were more successful in reducing tobacco dependence (P
