nonkeratinizing squamous cell carcinoma and keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma of the head and neck]. Recent studies have shown that immunosuppressive cytokines, such as IL-10 and TGF-beta(1), are associated with human malignant tumors. In this study, the expression of these cytokines in keratinizing and non-keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma of the head and neck was examined to clarify the role of these cytokines in head and neck cancers. In addition, the activities of DNA methyltransferase (DNMT) and TET, enzymes that are essential in the epigenetic regulation of gene expression, were also examined. Tissue specimens were obtained from patients with the histologic features of keratinizing and nonkeratinizing squamous cell carcinomas. The mRNA expression of IL-10, TGF-beta(1) and DNMT in the tumor tissue was examined by RT-PCR. The DNA methyltransferase activity of the tumor tissue was examined using an ELISA kit for 5-MeC. Expression of IL-10 and DNMT mRNA was detected in the keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma, but TGF-beta(1) and DNMT mRNAs were not detected in either keratinizing or nonkeratinizing squamous cell carcinoma. The DNA methyltransferase activity in keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma was significantly high. The expression of IL-10 and DNMT in keratinizing squamous cell carcinoma suggests that IL-10 and DNMT may play roles in the maintenance of a favorable microenvironment in a number of human cancers.Q: How to say "I will do my best to" in German? I have a question on
