are Captain Kidd, a mysterious, brilliant and determined man who never takes the easy way. You have been sent to the Arctic where you are to uncover the whereabouts of a priceless artifact. To make your job easier, Captain Kidd has asked his old friend, Captain Flint, to accompany you on the quest. Captain Flint promises to tell you all he knows about the artifact, but you will have to play a series of clues and tests to find out who he really is. In "The Ice Palace", you are in the service of Lord Rothschild as you follow the trail of the Pirate's Treasure. After a series of events you find yourself on board the ship the "Parasol". The Parasol is sinking fast and you have just a few hours to escape before it sinks. During your adventure, you will face cannons, cannons, cannons and much much more. Main Story [Story] Being a performer in the space gauntlet in year 2222, you'll know about the rivalry between the eight idols on your team. However, no one has managed to reach the top by performing well enough to win the Space Idol Competition and thus take control of the entire Net Space! Your best friend Tsuruno has always been a fan of the Space Idols, and she has decided to enter the competition alongside you! Can you finish ahead of everyone else on your team and beat the five other Space Idols to take command of the entire Net Space? [Playable Characters] Natsuko Tsuruno (voiced by Reika Kurumizawa) (Subtitle: Tsuruno) A confident and popular girl with a bright personality. She's always ready to lend a helping hand. She's also got a cheerful and friendly disposition, which makes her a popular and well-liked character. Tsuruno makes a strong and loyal ally for you, and as you struggle against the other browsers on your team, you'll enjoy Tsuruno's cheering words of encouragement. Mr. Unagi (voiced by Yasunori Masutani) (Subtitle: Mr. Unagi) Unagi is a legendary performer of the space gauntlet, and is very competitive. Like the star of the story, Mr. Unagi also has a strong and loyal personality, but he's also very polite and handsome. He respects and listens to your guidance, so there's no reason for you to think of him as a rival. Reiko Eto (voiced by Anju Inuzuka) (Subtitle: Eto) Eto is in the same class as Tsuruno and Unagi, so it's natural for her to be friendly with them as well. She's a mature and focused person, but she also has a warm and cheerful personality. She's got the same spirit and the same drive as Tsuruno, so if you can become a good leader for her, you can work well together. Nao Kadomo (voiced by Ryōka Kanda) (Subtitle: Nao) Kadomo is a quiet and gentle girl, but she's also very diligent. She wants to become a space idol, so she's working hard to get good at her performances. Kadomo

Friday, April 29, 2017 THE WINGS OF MAN - Chapter 77 The following is based solely on my experiences in the Third Floor of the restaurant and not on any investigation. Sooooo... if you're not into the whole OTP thing, skip this part. -Dan Christian Rose As the Wingman peered from the crumbling facility, its open doors quaking with each passing gust of wind, he could barely make out the telltale signs of the crew's first encounter with the entity. The interior of the building was desolate and silent, the stark, whitish walls partially concealed by deep-dark splotches of blood—liquids that had slowly but surely dispersed with each passing moment. Of the particular direction of the

carnage, it was as though the birds had flown very high and the arrows had been launched all at once, forcing a kind of early dispersal without regard for the individual birds. The Wingman spotted another human form lay on its back at the furthest corner of the room, but the body was beyond clean—clearly another victim of the unnatural volley fired from its upper perch. Like a local news report after a tragic event, the word ‘engulfed’ was constantly being mentioned. Of the trio, only one was still alive to deliver a harrowing account of their days last at Turkey Hill, Tennessee. He had never considered the details of what actually happened at the hotel, but the combination of booze and adrenaline had somehow blurred the memories and the man's mind had protected him, leaving him untouched by the freaky occurrences of those last days in McLean. With his heart racing, the Wingman fought to remain calm as a dark sense of dread washed over him, his nerves telling him that he was standing right on the precipice of a horrible fate. He could suddenly feel the pressure of the mercury belt, the object in his pocket growing heavier with each step of his heart's thundering. The body he had just found was that of another staffer at the restaurant, which meant that a wild game of chance had left one more soul to join the dead at these cursed halls. It was hours before the group had just finished that tour, which only verified what the Wingman had already suspected—the most unpredictable and heinous of all the days that had just occurred. A final drunken plea echoed from the long-closed eyes of the man, his empty, diluted mouth uttering
