FIFA Ultimate Team is getting ready for a host of new modes, including "Forza FUT," a community builder. FUT, previously Ultimate Team, is the game mode with the cars. Forza FUT will give users a place to share their creations with the world and will provide a new form of gameplay via a mobile app called the "Forza Playground." The mode will also allow players to explore Forza Championship, FUT Champions, Ultimate Trophies, and "Project Driven" where players will be able to build future cars from the car manufacturers in the game. More bug fixes, and a major one: the ejecting of the 30-second lap clock from the FIFA Ultimate Team leaderboards is now fixed, even in official EA Sports FUT. If you didn't get a chance to pick up the FIFA Ultimate Team content in FIFA 21, be sure to grab your copy of FIFA 22, which is available to purchase now on PlayStation 4, PlayStation 3, and Xbox One.

Q: How to read sommelier.com reviews in Python? I'm trying to read sommelier.com reviews from a python script. I'm stuck on this, not sure if it is a really simple SQL or how to use the information, and the only basic stuff on the website only explains how to use a tool to search for a wine, but not to get all the reviews on it. So I tried to find a way by executing `import requests` `r = requests.get("")` `text = r.text` I understand there's some sort of format, but since I don't know the best regex to use, I have trouble figuring out what to do.

A: If you inspect the HTML output from the API, you can see that it returns the reviews in JSON format with a structure like this: `{ "meta": { "msg": "ERROR_UNKNOWN" }, "reviews": { "reports": { "row_data": [ { "num_reviews": 3900, "review_cls":`
