Now, they are full of energy and enthusiasm, as they have returned from their summer vacation. They are eager to share their experiences with their parents and grandparents, and also to know what all new things they got to know, while they were away. But, what will you do when you are left with no clue, what has happened in their absence? You might have to resort to asking them, what did you do during the summer vacation, where you went, etc. They might be reluctant to answer, or they might even pretend that they do not know, and that's when you realize that you should be quick with the quesion. If they feel they are being 'peeked', they might also feel offended. Or, they may even get upset and have an outburst at you. To avoid all these, you can take the help of easy maaser – a portable application which is available for all mobile phones. The application is an easy to use application, which is completely free.
