In Nascence you take on the role of an instrument builder. You choose the materials, design the instrument, and then create it from scratch, controlling all the details as it comes together. As you build, you discover your own inner instrument with unique traits that help define your music. Build your own virtual instrument by sculpting strings, bridges, and fretboard from a floating-point 3D mesh. Use precise volume adjustment, bendable tuning keys, and pedal inputs to sculpt your sound with raw physical interaction. With all of the internal wiring drawn and accessible in real-time, you'll be able to see precisely how your sound is built. For some instruments, the strings are hidden by the visualization setup, making you part of a hidden orchestra. With the physicality of your instrument, you can achieve a greater level of expression than ever before. You are the conductor of your own composition, and with the freedom of infinite real-world scale, you'll always have the options to create a perfectly warped sound. Real-Time Audio Mixing For the first time in VR, audio mixing is a real-time interactive experience. With the expansive scale of physically sculpted instruments, the audio is a robust and dynamic part of the experience. In Nascence, you decide how your new creation will sound. When you adjust the knobs, the musical tones that you hear are based on the precise physical and artistic decisions you made to create the sound. You won't have to go through a lengthy audio editing process in order to create the perfect mix. Just play the game and it will do the rest. Blending Art and Science Nascence is an instrument that blends art and science. We are creating technology that will allow you to sing and play music in ways that weren't before possible. As the only full-featured virtual instrument developed on the Vive, we're pushing the boundaries of what a VR instrument can be. We're focusing on capturing the physical and dynamic nature of our instruments by featuring the world's most accurate input modeling and the most precise real-time audio mixing. We're committed to showcasing Nascence's innovations in VR, and will be releasing an SDK to make it easier for indie developers to implement its features and re-mix their games in Nascence. For those who are interested, we've also uploaded the full user interface as a research project that is used to

Sampler Soundtrack Sampler is the sixth EP by American grunge band

Soundgarden, recorded and released on March 29, 1994. It was the last album that band recorded with Chris Cornell before his death in 2017. The album was mastered by Andy Wallace. It is the only album to feature Chester Bennington and Corey Taylor of Slipknot as guest vocalists on "Hunger Strike" and "State of Shock". Background After the release of their previous album "King Animal", Soundgarden was in the middle of a New York tour with Fugazi and Meat Puppets. Chris Cornell was sporting a full beard, cut in the style of Kurt Cobain, inspired by music that he was listening to in the tour bus. In an interview with Jon Wiederhorn in December 1993, Cornell claims to have hated the record, calling it "the worst fucking record I've ever fucking heard. I wouldn't even listen to it, I just wanted to cut it, burn it, find a FUCKING FIRE EXTINGUISHER and smoke it. When I'm driving my car and I stop for gas - I won't go to the gas station but I'll just cruise through town and kill myself with my kids in the back seat - that is how much I hate it." Around this time, Cornell was also working as a recording engineer and producer as well as a drummer in a band called Chocolate Genius, formed by his friend Mark Pritchard, who was the drummer for Mr. Mister at the time. After recording a demo at Pritchard's apartment, Pritchard applied to Lollapalooza to see the band, but failed to receive a response. While halfway through the Soma tour, on March 15, 1994, Cornell suffered his first bout of psychosis, which was being treated with medication. During his next show in Los Angeles he noticed his friend had left his bike at the concert. After realizing it was a "messy proposition" to bring the bike back, he decided to keep it, calling it "an act of profound kindness." After the tour, Chris heard that his friend Danny Goldberg, who had been managing a band called Tad, sent a demo to his label. Cornell wrote to Danny in hopes of having his record released in the same manner as the box set Louder Than Love, after hearing that band's record label, SST Records, no longer existed. One month later, Goldberg sent Chris a copy of the handwritten letter that Danny
