CFX2014 as a stand-alone program.Day after Thanksgiving, "no-impact players" can obtain a permit to play in the Boston area for the first time this year. The Massachusetts Outdoor Recreation Plan calls for creating an annual, statewide lottery system to distribute 20,000 no-impact player permits to those interested in playing in the area. MORE BOSTON NEWS The Boston region could get a second visitor center along the Freedom Trail, at the site of a former U.S. Army artillery base. The new center would be built on the site of Fort Rea in Jamaica Plain, a National Historic Landmark and Historic District, the National Park Service said. Rea was home to an artillery unit during the Civil War and, later, a military base that included a detention center during World War II. The center would be built through the state's Mass Outdoor Recreation Plan, which is billed as an effort to help the state protect its outdoor spaces. Meanwhile, four trolley companies will be allowed to run on their own tracks in an effort to improve service in Jamaica Plain, Brookline, and Newton, after a judge dissolved the track maintenance arrangements for the companies last month."In this arena, we fully intend to fight a legal battle, and we can't rule out a lawsuit," a Boeing spokesman said on Wednesday. "We've already had significant settlement discussions and are in regular contact with the FAA and 0cc13bf012
