I downloaded it for free.,.Category Archives: Update Hello, dear friends, I hope you've been happy and healthy so far in November! I've made many new recipes! I've been counting my days until October, though, so I've only uploaded seven recipes so far. It's really difficult to find live, nutritious grassfed lamb at the supermarket. It is very tempting to buy the prepackaged meat from the butcher (like I did several times...), but it's not the same. I'm sure we all agree that we prefer to buy food from local farmers and producers. So, I decided to make something... Dark Chocolate Caramel Cake with Coconut Frosting - uses only ingredients from a standard Dutch cake mix with the addition of dark chocolate. This cake couldn't be easier to make, and neither is it difficult to make (around 25 minutes from start to finish). What a fabulous alternative for Halloween! There's absolutely no better cure for a cold than a big bowl of soup! And since today is (according to the calendar) the last day of October, I decided to do a soup post. I made a cauliflower and gremolata soup. In Dutch we call it tenaaislof soup (10% soup...). It is quite a simple recipe. A couple of toasted and crushed walnuts as the gremolata, a large onion, garlic, 2 Tbsp olive oil and 1 litre of vegetable broth. Add cauliflower that's been cut in florets, chicken broth and salt and pepper. Cover with lid and let it simmer for about 35 minutes or until the cauliflower is tender. Then add in the gremolata. That's where I'm getting my inspiration. Sweetened, Nutella

I want to create an array of values, but I want to do it with the FOR loop in VBA, how can I do this? I tried Dim arResult() As Integer For i As Integer = 0 To 10 Step 1 arResult(i) = 10 - i Next i but this syntax doesnt work. A: In short, use a Dim() statement. If you need to put in a series of elements (and hence not need to calculate the size), Dim it, and then just use the Address property to reference the element. Dim arResult(0 To 10) As Integer arResult(0) = 10 arResult(1) = 10 - 1 arResult( 6d1f23a050
