In the healthy body, production of the hormones is strongly inhibited by the gram-negative bacteria that live in the intestines. Why would such a beneficial species be toxic to the body?. Herpes simplex is the cutaneous manifestation of a specific virus (herpes simplex virus). This virus establishes itself in the epidermis, usually at the site of a cut. This site becomes fertile ground for the virus to disseminate throughout the body. The virus produces and excretes a weakened form of the same virus that is transported to the nerve endings. Within these nerve endings, the weakened virus produces disease-causing proteins. The disease-causing proteins induce inflammation in the nerve endings, and this process becomes an energy-consuming process. Antibiotics show their effect by inhibiting the growth of bacteria, thereby keeping the infection contained. When antibiotics are used for treatment of herpes, the offending bacteria are controlled, and the inflammation is not as severe. The impact on the endocrine system is often very mild, except in the young. Carpal tunnel syndrome is an injury of the ligament that protects the tendons in the hand from hyperextension. The ligament (enphysis) of the upper arm and the tendon (flexor retinaculum) of the hand are fused to each other through the bone in the carpal tunnel. This combination of ligament and tendon creates a very

Field of the Invention The present invention generally relates to a method of manufacturing a color filter used in a thin film transistor (TFT) substrate for a liquid crystal display.

2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, a technique for manufacturing a thin film transistor (TFT) substrate for a liquid crystal display (LCD) has been increasingly simplified. Most of the TFT substrates are manufactured using a four-mask method. In the method, a gate electrode, a gate insulating layer, a source electrode and a drain electrode are formed in this order through four manufacturing steps. As a manufacturing process of a TFT substrate having a color filter, a more simplified method has been demanded. For example, in a TFT substrate having the same manufacturing process as that of the above-mentioned TFT substrate, a process for forming a color filter also needs to be simplified. Particularly, a structure for protecting a light-emitting element and a peripheral driving circuit part from an electrostatic discharge (ESD) tends to have a larger surface area.

This structure tends to require a larger number of layers and an increased number of manufacturing steps. Therefore, it is also
