Al-Rasas-Ma'ani (Arabic:ألراسمان), Arabic name أُلراسمان (Ur-Rasas-Ma'ani) (“الراسمان” “the creators”), also known as al-Rasas al-Karabi (Arabic: الكرابي أُلراسمان), meaning “the creators of the carvers”, is a traditional Kabbalistic phrase that refers to the two aspects of the Creative Intellect, on the one hand, that transcends the Aristotelian understanding of the difference between Genus and Species, “the Creator” and “the Creation”, and on the other hand, the materiality of the created substance. Both aspects are necessary for the creation of anything, a process which ends in the ultimate recognition that both are aspects of the same thing. Al Rasas al-Karabi, or the Idea of Creation, is the basis of Kabbalistic cosmology, and is said to pervade the universe and manifest itself in the tikkun of the imperfect soul. Al Rasas al-Karabi was the symbol of the ancient Jewish people, because the Jews have to be those who can fill the world with beauty; al Rasas al-Karabi is the sum of the intellect that comes together with the spirituality and the action that comes together with the body. in the ancient times the Jews used to think that the name of their God is Rastafari. Al Rasas al-Karabi is the logic that is behind every creation. »»» Al-Rassam Al-Arabi, Arabic for 'the creators', is the Muslim name of God. One of the main characteristics of Judaism is the belief in one God (Omertà). One of the Jewish beliefs is that every kind of man was created by God, and every person will be judged accordingly.
