cosmopolitan's virtual makeover deluxe, now in its second edition, also provides the user with 500 hairstyles, including some with bridal veils. the program has 30 hair solutions for men as well, along with several mustache and beard options. the program offers 300 cosmetic colors (cover girl products are featured prominently) and 200 accessories like hats and sunglasses to sample. users are prompted to participate in a short beauty quiz early on to help create a personal profile, and recommendations are offered throughout the program based on the profile. unlike the original cosmo virtual makeover, the deluxe version allows users to purchase some of the accessories. the classic version includes about 40 of the same products (the deluxe's is $29.99), most of which are in three sizes. clients can change hairstyles to try on one's own hair types, to determine which ones work best with their face shapes. you can also add eyebrows or false eyelashes as well. the style builder lets users create a different style each day, and try on different combinations. users can also give the program a name and upload a photo of themselves to help ensure its accuracy. the program also includes tutorials such as product applications and makeup applications. it costs $29.99 as well. in comparison, cosmo's old version was $39.95.

while we were there on a visit, tidy mentioned a new feature coming to the site soon -- makeup looks on the facebook home page. it will feature some of the best virtual makeovers users have submitted to the company's web site, tidy said. in the old days, women could only experiment with makeup in the privacy of their dressing rooms. but thanks to these modern times, they can now have virtual makeovers with technology that allows them to try on any number of different styles, and see how they look. if you enjoy them, or want to try one on your face, it's your life now. -- sarah schultz

the unreal architectural component of royal caribbean internationals cosmopolitan is created by the exterior façade, a surface sheathed with a copper canopy. this type of roof can be found in many other contemporary skyscraper-yielding buildings. spa royal spa is a state-of-the-art integrated spa hotel, with a complete retail store on one side of the building and a retail store and spa on the other. spa royal features a total of eight unique themed suites where guests can indulge in pampering treatments. housed in a carefully constructed, acoustic shell of glass and acoustical tiles, its atrium divides the eight suites, each providing its own unique experience. the façade consists of three layers made of marine-grade, low-maintenance laminate with a foil finish. the façade provides incredible unobstructed views of the open spaces, the atrium and the new york skyline. adjacent to the atrium is a glass elevator which was designed by richard outcalt, and transports guests to and from the spa. a conceptual visualisation of royal cruise lines®' vision for royal spa can be found at the navigator is also a departure for the mega cruise lines, which previously featured such green conservation-minded ships as the crystal symphony, celebrity millennium, and royal caribbean's voyager, which had been retired and then brought back to life with steel recycled from the titanic. the vikram lunaworks the ship's 16th-century lines for attractive modern interiors. instead of the traditional art deco influence from 80s-style cruise ships, the vikram features a series of stellar columns with ocean views.
